Under SB 653, the Texas Juvenile Justice Department (TJJD) has been made responsible for partnering with “local county governments, the courts, and communities to promote public safety,”\(^1\) as well as for “producing positive outcomes for youth, families, and communities.”\(^2\) To ensure these mandates are met, stakeholders must familiarize themselves with the information pertinent to their community.

The information included within this data sheet reflects the most recent juvenile data for Gaines County.

4 A youth is formally referred to the Texas Juvenile Justice Department if face-to-face contact is made with a designated juvenile office for having engaged in delinquent activity within the Department’s jurisdiction.
5 A pre-adjudication detention center is a secure residential facility (public or private) used for temporary placement of youth who have been accused of committing an offense.
6 A post-adjudication placement involves a secure residential facility (public or private) where youth are placed after disposition of their case.

9 Gaines County does not have a juvenile detention center (pre-adjudication facility) or secure residential placement facility (post-adjudication). Youth who are referred to TJJD from Gaines County are detained (pre-adjudication) in the Garza County Regional Juvenile Center. Separately, post-adjudication placements of youth from Gaines County vary by need and proximity to home.
10 This number was obtained via TJJD’s Facility Registry. This is the only cost made public; it reflects the per-youth expense that another county would pay to place their youth within this facility.
11 Inappropriate use of solitary confinement (also known as disciplinary seclusions) and physical restraints (also known as use of force) in juvenile secure facilities create major barriers to successful rehabilitation. These concerns are especially serious for traumatized youth and youth with mental health issues. See, e.g., L.M. Finke “The Use of Seclusion is Not an Evidence-Based Practice” (2001), and G.R. Hodas “Responding to Childhood Trauma: The Promise and Practice of Trauma Informed Care” (2006).
